

Merrimack College

Merrimack ScholarWorks

Community Engagement Student Work

Education Student Work

Spring 2019

The Case for Heartwork: Putting Healing Justice Into Practice

Michael Roy

Merrimack College, roym@merrimack.edu

Follow this and additional works at: https://scholarworks.merrimack.edu/soe_student_ce

Part of the Civic and Community Engagement Commons, and the Community-Based Learning Commons

Recommended Citation

Roy, Michael, "The Case for Heartwork: Putting Healing Justice Into Practice" (2019). Community Engagement Student Work. 35.

https://scholarworks.merrimack.edu/soe_student_ce/35

This Capstone - Open Access is brought to you for free and open access by the Education Student Work at Merrimack ScholarWorks. It has been accepted for inclusion in Community Engagement Student Work by an authorized administrator of Merrimack ScholarWorks. For more information, please contact scholarworks@merrimack.edu.

The Case for Heartwork: Putting Healing Justice Into Practice

Michael Roy, Merrimack College

Class Year

2019

Date

5-9-2019

Document Type

Capstone

Degree Name

Master of Education (M.Ed.)

Department or Program

Community Engagement

First Advisor

Sean McCarthy

Second Advisor

Ali Plocha

Abstract

This capstone explores the concept and movement of healing justice through seeking to provide a comprehensive review of literature to outline a framework of healing justice. From here the concept of Heartwork is introduced as an actionable form of healing justice and what specifically such practice entails. Finally the capstone provides an overview of the frontiers of Heartwork and HJ such as in the K-12 educational system, police officer training, and in public and social service work (with particular paid to how heartwork could be used in teacher training for equity and social justice) to create policies and practices that envision radical liberation and work toward the dismantling of structural violence for community well-being.

Language

English

Recommended Citation

Roy, Michael, "The Case for Heartwork: Putting Healing Justice Into Practice" (2019). Graduate Capstone.

<https://publications.lakeforest.edu/seniortheses/117>

Further Discussion

The author is currently revising with the hope of publication. For access to the working draft, feedback, or collaboration please reach out to Michael at roym@merrimack.edu or www.linkedin.com/in/michaelroy23.